Grade 6 Year-Long Overview

Students in social studies should explore key questions through multiple sources to develop claims about social studies content. As such, teachers must create instructional opportunities that delve deeply into content and guide students in developing and supporting claims about social studies concepts.

<tr>
<td>Human understanding of the world around them</td>
<td>How are societies impacted by geography, historical events, politics, and economics?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Content: Students explore different peoples and places around the world over the course of time. Students explain how society, the environment, the political and economic landscape, and historical events influence perspectives, values, traditions, and ideas. To accomplish this, they:

- Use key questions to build understanding of content through multiple sources
- Corroborate sources and evaluate evidence by considering author, occasion, and purpose

Claims: Students are beginning to understand how to develop claims and support with a foundation of a source, rather than an opinion. The reliance is on authentic sources focusing on primary sources whenever appropriate. Students develop and express claims through discussions and writing which examine the impact of relationships between ideas, people, and events across time and place. To accomplish this, they:

- Recognize recurring themes and patterns in history, geography, economics, and civics
- Evaluate the causes and consequences of events and developments

Unit 1: Geographical Concepts & the First Civilizations

(August–September)

Unit overview: In this unit students will learn about how geography impacts the developments of civilizations. Students will also learn how physical and political boundaries of civilizations, empires, and kingdoms similar and different, and how can people determine world migration patterns and trends. Students will be able to explain how the availability or scarcity of different resources affects cultural development and also what role did the development of tools and agriculture play in the development of early civilizations. This sets the stage for the unit to follow where students begin to explore ancient river valley civilizations.

Note: This content could be taught in conjunction with the If Stones Could Speak unit (Lessons 2 and 3) from the English Language Arts Guidebook for Grade 6.
